SUCCESS STORY

The youth of Kaçanik/Kačanik being active against violent extremism and radicalism

On May 31, 2017 in the center of Kaçanik/Kačanik, were organized traditional games with the youngsters from this municipality. The important topic with dozens of young people has been the promotion of messages of tolerance and messages against violent extremism.

"The empowerment and raising awareness among the citizens, explaining them that this new global flow does not only lead to a tragic ending but also destroys everything you’ve built, is something that is increasing each day. Even though, an overall challenge is the low quality of education and lack of information, citizens need to raise their voice all together for a safer and more peaceful life," says Ardijana.

Through traditional games, dance and music, the youth of Kaçanik/Kačanik have united and supported each other in confronting violent extremism and radicalism. The promotion of traditional values through youth activities and other categories of society aims to cultivate the love and prosperity of young people in Kosovo, avoiding extremist ideologies and deviant phenomena.

Such activities are implemented through the project “Promoting civil society engagement in countering violent extremism” realized by Security Policy Research Center – SPRC, supported by Engagement for Equity – E4E program, that is financed by United States Agency for International Development – USAID and implemented by Advocacy Training and Resource Training – ATRC.
